DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

1. (LO 1) Determining the intent of Congress is a large part of tax research. Reviewing the Committee Reports generated by the House Ways and Means Committee, the Senate Finance Committee, and the Joint Conference Committee (if convened) will assist in determining intent.
2. (LO 1) The many gray areas, the complexity of the tax laws, and the possibility of different interpretations of the tax law create the necessity of alternatives for structuring a business transaction.
3. (LO 1) Federal tax legislation generally originates in the House of Representatives, where it is first considered by the House Ways and Means Committee.

Dear Ms. Bishop:

This letter is in response to your request about information concerning a conflict between a U.S. treaty with Spain and a section of the Internal Revenue Code (IRC). The major reasons for treaties between the United States and certain foreign countries is to eliminate double taxation and to render mutual assistance in tax enforcement.

IRC § 7852(d) provides that if a U.S. treaty is in conflict with a provision in the IRC, neither will take general precedence. Rather, the more recent of the two will have precedence. In your case, the treaty with Spain takes precedence over the IRC section.

A taxpayer must disclose on the tax return any positions where a treaty overrides a tax law. There is a $1,000 penalty per failure to disclose for individuals and a $10,000 penalty per failure to disclose for corporations.

Should you need more information, feel free to contact me.

Sincerely,

Jeffrey Hanks, CPA

6. (LO 1) There are a number of limitations on the percentage of depletion deduction, but there is a limited exception for independent producers and royalty owners. This deduction, however, is not available for a taxpayer that is a retailer or refiner. But § 613A(d)(4) indicates that a percentage depletion deduction “shall not apply to the taxpayer for a taxable year if the average daily refinery runs of the taxpayer and such persons for the taxable year exceed 75,000 barrels.” So, as long as the independent producer is refining 75,000 barrels or less in a taxable year, the percentage depletion deduction will be available.
7. (LO 1, 4) The items would probably be ranked as follows (from lowest to highest):
- (1) Letter ruling (valid only to the taxpayer to whom issued).
  - (2) Proposed Regulation (most courts ignore these).
  - (3) Revenue Ruling.
  - (4) Interpretive Regulation.
  - (5) Legislative Regulation.
  - (6) Internal Revenue Code.
8. (LO 1)
- a. This citation refers to a Temporary Regulation; 1 refers to the type of Regulation (i.e., income tax), 956 is the related Code section number, 2 is the Regulation section number, and T refers to temporary.
  - b. Revenue Ruling number 15, appearing on page 975 of the 23rd weekly issue of the Internal Revenue Bulletin for 2012.
  - c. Letter Ruling 51, issued in the 4th week of 2002.

9. (LO 1, 5) TAX FILE MEMORANDUM

DATE: September 21, 2023
FROM: George Ames
SUBJECT: Telephone conversation with Sally Andrews on applicability of 2015 letter ruling

I informed Sally Andrews that only the taxpayer to whom the 2015 letter ruling was issued may rely on the pronouncement. I also stressed that a letter ruling has no precedential value under § 6110(k)(3).

I pointed out that a letter ruling indicates the position of the IRS on the specific fact pattern presented as of the date of the letter ruling. As such, a letter ruling is not primary authority. However, under Reg. § 1.6662-4(d)(3), a letter ruling is substantial authority for purposes of the accuracy-related penalty in § 6662.

10. (LO 1) Sri should consider the following factors in determining whether he should request a letter ruling from the IRS with respect to the proposed stock redemption:

- For a fee, the IRS will issue a letter ruling at a taxpayer's request and describe how the IRS will treat a proposed transaction. The letter ruling applies only to the requesting taxpayer. A Revenue Ruling is applicable to all taxpayers.
- Sri must determine whether the possible tax amount is large enough to warrant the costs and time to apply for a letter ruling.
- If Sri is likely to obtain an adverse letter ruling from the IRS National Office, he should forgo the ruling request.
- The letter ruling would have substantial authority for purposes of the accuracy-related penalty.
- Sri needs to consult Rev.Proc. 2023-3 to be certain the IRS will issue a ruling about this tax issue. The IRS will not rule in certain areas that involve fact-oriented situations but will probably issue one here.

11. (LO 1) Letter rulings may be found in:

- IRS Letter Ruling Reports (CCH).
- Bloomberg BNA Daily Tax Reports.
- Tax Notes (Tax Analysts).
- Letter rulings are also available in electronic (online) tax research services (e.g., Thomson Reuters Checkpoint).

12. (LO 1) TEAMS are issued by the Office of Chief Counsel to expedite legal guidance to field agents as disputes are developing. TEAMS differ from TAMs as follows:

- A mandatory presubmission conference involves the taxpayer.
- In the event of a tentatively adverse conclusion to the taxpayer or to the field agent, a conference of right will be offered to the taxpayer and to the field agent.
- No further conferences are offered once the conference of right is held.

13. (LO 1) Sanjay must consider several factors in deciding whether to take the dispute to the judicial system:

- How expensive will it be?
- How much time will be consumed?
- Does he have the temperament to engage in the battle?
- What is the probability of winning?
- Once a decision is made to litigate the issue, the appropriate judicial forum must be selected.
- Tax Court judges have more expertise in tax matters.
- The tax deficiency need not be paid to litigate in the Tax Court. However, if Sanjay loses, interest must be paid on any unpaid deficiency.
- If a trial by jury is preferred, the U.S. District Court is the appropriate forum.
- The tax deficiency must be paid before litigating in the District Court or the Court of Federal Claims.
- If an appeal to the Federal Circuit is important, Sanjay should select the Court of Federal Claims.
- A survey of the decisions involving the issues in dispute is appropriate. If a particular court has taken an unfavorable position, that court should be avoided.

14. (LO 1) The main advantage of the U.S. Court of Federal Claims occurs when a taxpayer's applicable Circuit Court previously rendered an adverse decision. Such a taxpayer may select the U.S. Court of Federal Claims because any appeal will be to the Federal Circuit.

One disadvantage of the U.S. Court of Federal Claims is that the tentative deficiency must be paid before the Court will hear and decide the controversy.

The U.S. Court of Federal Claims is a trial court that usually meets in Washington, D.C. It has jurisdiction for any claim against the United States that is based on the Constitution, any Act of Congress, or any Regulation of an executive department.

Tucson, AZ 85714

Dear Mr. Falls:

You have three alternatives should you decide to pursue your $229,030 deficiency in the court system. One alternative is the U.S. Tax Court, the most popular forum. Overall, Tax Court judges have more expertise in tax matters. The main advantage is that the U.S. Tax Court is the only trial court where the tax need not be paid prior to litigating the controversy. However, interest will be due on an unpaid deficiency. The interest rate varies from one quarter to the next as announced by the IRS.

One disadvantage of the U.S. Tax Court is the delay that might result before a case is decided. The length of delay depends on the Court calendar, which includes a schedule of locations where cases will be tried. Another disadvantage is being unable to have the case heard before a jury.

The major advantage of another alternative, the U.S. District Court, is the availability of a trial by jury. One disadvantage of a U.S. District Court is that the tentative tax deficiency must be paid before the Court will hear and decide the controversy.

The Court of Federal Claims, the third alternative, is a trial court that usually meets in Washington, D.C. It has jurisdiction for any claim against the United States that is based on the Constitution, any Act of Congress, or any regulation of an executive department. The main advantage of the U.S. Court of Federal Claims occurs when a taxpayer's applicable Circuit Court previously rendered an adverse decision. Such a taxpayer may select the Court of Federal Claims because any appeal will be to the Federal Circuit instead. One disadvantage of the Court of Federal Claims is that the tentative deficiency must be paid before the Court will hear and decide the controversy.

I hope this information is helpful, and, should you need more help, please contact me.

Sincerely,

Abby Reynolds, CPA

16. (LO 1) The U.S. Tax Court hears only tax cases and is the most popular forum for tax cases (generally viewed as an advantage). Overall, Tax Court judges have more tax expertise; many had careers in the Treasury Department or the IRS before being appointed to the Tax Court. A taxpayer does not have to pay the tax deficiency assessed by the IRS before trial, but a taxpayer may deposit a cash bond to stop the running of interest (also viewed as an advantage). Appeals from a Tax Court are to the appropriate U.S. Court of Appeals. A disadvantage is that the taxpayer may not obtain a jury trial in the U.S. Tax Court.
17. (LO 1) See Exhibit 2.4, Exhibit 2.5, and Concept Summary 2.1.
  - a. There is no appeal by either the taxpayer or the IRS from a decision of the Small Cases Division of the U.S. Tax Court.
  - b. The first appeal would be to the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals. Further appeal would be to the U.S. Supreme Court.
  - c. Same as part b. above.
  - d. The appeal would be to the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals and then to the U.S. Supreme Court.
18. (LO 1) The term petitioner is a synonym for plaintiff, which refers to the party requesting action in a court.

19. (LO 1) Both the Code and the Supreme Court indicate that the Federal appellate courts are bound by findings of facts unless they are clearly erroneous. As a result, the role of appellate courts is limited to a review of the record of trial compiled by the trial courts. Therefore, the appellate process usually involves a determination of whether the trial court applied the proper law in arriving at its decision. Rarely will an appellate court disturb a lower court's fact-finding determination.

20. (LO 1) See Concept Summary 2.1.	U.S. Tax Court	U.S. District Court	U.S. Court of Federal Claims

b. Jury trial	No	Yes	No
c. Prepayment of deficiency required before trial	No	Yes	Yes

21. (LO 1) See Exhibit 2.5.

- a. Tenth.
- b. Eighth.
- c. Ninth.
- d. Fifth.
- e. Seventh.

22. (LO 1) See Exhibit 2.4.

- a. The Tax Court must follow its own cases, the pertinent U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, and the Supreme Court.
- b. The Court of Federal Claims must follow its own decisions, the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals, and the Supreme Court.
- c. The District Court must follow its own decisions, the pertinent U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, and the Supreme Court.

23. (LO 1) The appropriate Circuit Court of Appeals for an appeal depends on where the litigation originated. For example, an appeal from Texas would go to the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, and an appeal from Colorado would go to the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals. See Exhibit 2.5.

24. (LO 1, 2, 4)

- a. If the taxpayer chooses a U.S. District Court as the trial court for litigation, the U.S. District Court of Wyoming will be the forum to hear the case. Unless the prior decision has been reversed on appeal, one would expect the same court to follow its earlier holding.
- b. If the taxpayer chooses the U.S. Court of Federal Claims as the trial court for litigation, the decision that was rendered previously by this Court should have a direct bearing on the outcome. If the taxpayer selects a different trial court

- (i.e., the appropriate U.S. District Court or the U.S. Tax Court), the decision that was rendered by the U.S. Court of Federal Claims will be persuasive but not controlling. It is, of course, assumed that the result that was reached by the U.S. Court of Federal Claims was not reversed on appeal.
- c. The decision of a U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals will carry more weight than one that was rendered by a trial court. Because the taxpayer lives in California, however, any appeal from a U.S. District Court or the U.S. Tax Court will go to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals (see Exhibit 2.4). Although the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals might be influenced by what the Second Circuit Court of Appeals has decided, it is not compelled to follow such holding. See Exhibit 2.5.
  - d. Because the U.S. Supreme Court is the highest appellate court, one can place complete reliance upon its decisions. Nevertheless, one should investigate any decision to see whether the Code has been modified with respect to the result that was reached. The rare possibility also exists that the Court may have changed its position in a later decision. See Exhibit 2.4.
  - e. When the IRS acquiesces to a decision of the U.S. Tax Court, it agrees with the result that was reached. As long as such acquiescence remains in effect, taxpayers can be assured that this represents the position of the IRS on the issue that was involved. Keep in mind, however, that the IRS can change its mind and can, at any time, withdraw the acquiescence and substitute a nonacquiescence.
  - f. The issuance of a nonacquiescence usually reflects that the IRS does not agree with the result reached by the U.S. Tax Court. Consequently, taxpayers are placed on notice that the IRS will continue to challenge the issue that was involved.
25. (LO 2) The number 66 is the volume number for the U.S. Tax Court, 39 refers to the page number of the 562nd volume of the Federal Second Series, and nonacq. means that the IRS disagreed with the decision. The Tax Court (T.C.) cite is to the trial court.
26. (LO 1) There is no automatic right of appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court. Appeal is by Writ of Certiorari. If the Court agrees to hear the dispute, it will grant the Writ (Cert. granted). Most often, the highest court will deny jurisdiction (Cert. denied).

32. (LO 3) After understanding the relevant facts and the accounting rules related to qualified stock options:
- Yvonne can begin with the index volumes of the available tax services: RIA, CCH, or BNA Portfolios.
  - A key word search on an online service should be helpful—Thomson Reuters Checkpoint, CCH IntelliConnect, LexisNexis, or Westlaw (or WestlawNext).
  - Yvonne may browse through IRS publications (available on the IRS website).
  - Yvonne could consult CCH's Federal Tax Articles to locate current appropriate articles written about qualified stock options. Thomson Reuters publishes the Index to Federal Tax Articles that is organized using RIA's paragraph index system.
  - Additional information can be found on the internet.
33. (LO 4) The current Code can be found in various places. Several of the major tax services publish paperback editions of the Code (and Regulations). These editions are usually revised twice each year. Further, the text of the Code may be found in the major tax services and as Title 26 of the U.S. Code. The Code also may be found on the Web.
34. (LO 2, 3, 4) The best means of locating tax articles pertinent to your problem is through Commerce Clearing House's Federal Tax Articles. This multivolume service includes a subject index, a Code section number index, and an author's index. Another is the Index to Federal Tax Articles (published by Thomson Reuters). Both of these indexes are updated periodically but are available only in print form.
- Court decisions, revenue rulings and procedures, and other relevant authority may be reviewed for reliability using a citator within the commercial tax service. A citator provides the history of a case, including the authority relied on (e.g., other judicial decisions) in reaching the result. Reviewing the references listed in the citator discloses whether the decision was appealed and, if so, with what result (e.g., affirmed, reversed, or remanded). It also reveals other cases with the same or similar issues and how they were decided. As a result, a citator reflects on the validity of a case and may lead to other relevant authority. If one intends to rely on a judicial decision to any significant degree, "running" the case through a citator is imperative.
35. (LO 6) The primary purpose of effective tax planning is to maximize the taxpayer's after-tax wealth. This process can entail an avoidance, a reduction, or a postponement of the tax until the future.

This process does not mean that the course of action selected must produce the lowest possible tax under the circumstances. Legitimate business goals also must be considered.

There is nothing illegal or immoral about tax avoidance. But it is important to understand the difference between tax avoidance and tax evasion. A citizen has every legal right to arrange his or her affairs to keep the attendant taxes as low as possible. One is required to pay no more taxes than the law demands.

36. (LO 7) Task-based simulations on the CPA exam are case studies that allow candidates to demonstrate their knowledge and skills by generating responses to questions rather than simply selecting an answer. They typically require candidates to use spreadsheets and/or to research authoritative literature provided in the CPA exam (e.g., Internal Revenue Code, Treasury Department Regulations, IRS publications, and Federal tax forms). In addition, the task-based simulations provide increased background material and data that require candidates to determine what information is or is not relevant to the questions.

The Committee derives a large share of its jurisdiction from Article I, Section VII of the U.S. Constitution which declares, "All Bills for raising Revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives." First established as a select committee on July 24, 1789, it was discharged less than two months later. The committee was reappointed from the first session of the Fourth Congress in 1795 and was formally listed as a standing committee in the House Rules on January 7, 1802. Until 1865, the jurisdiction of the committee (referred to as the Committee of Ways and Means before 1880) included the critically important areas of revenue, appropriations, and banking. Since 1865, the committee has continued to exercise jurisdiction over revenue and related issues such as tariffs, reciprocal trade agreements, and the bonded debt of the United States. Revenue-related aspects of the Social Security system, Medicare, and social services programs also come within the scope of the Committee on Ways and Means.

49. (LO 1) The differences between a Regular decision, a Memorandum decision, and a Summary Opinion of the U.S. Tax Court are summarized as follows:
- In terms of substance, Memorandum decisions deal with situations that require only the application of previously established principles of law. The dispute between the taxpayer and the IRS is typically over how the law applies to the particular facts. Regular decisions involve novel issues that have not been resolved by the Court. In actual practice, however, this distinction is not always observed.
  - Memorandum decisions officially were published until 1999 in mimeograph form only, but Regular decisions are published by the U.S. Government in a series that is designated as the Tax Court of the United States Reports. Memorandum decisions are now published on the Tax Court website. Both Regular and Memorandum decisions are published by various commercial tax services (e.g., CCH and Thomson Reuters).
  - A Summary Opinion is a Small Cases Division case involving amounts of $50,000 or less. They are not precedents for any other court decisions and are not reviewable by any higher court. Proceedings are timelier and less expensive than a Memorandum or Regular decision. Small cases decisions are published as Summary Opinion, found commercially and on the U.S. Tax Court website.
50. (LO 1, 2) Taxpayers who claim an itemized deduction for the interest they pay on adjustable-rate mortgages and receive a refund from their mortgage company in a following year must include the refund as income. Taxpayers who claimed the standard deduction rather than an actual interest deduction are not required to include the refund in income (Announcement 92-172).
51. (LO 1, 2) Loan origination fees (“points”) paid by the buyer with regard to VA and FHA loans may be treated as deductible points in the year of the sale (Rev.Proc. 92-12 and Rev.Proc. 94-27).
52. (LO 2) The IRS maintains a website on digital assets (including virtual currency):

irs.gov/businesses/small-businesses-self-employed/digital-assets

In addition, Notice 2014-21 (2014-21 I.R.B. 938) explains how existing tax principles apply to transactions involving virtual currency. In Notice 2014-21, the IRS concludes that virtual currency is property and that sales or exchanges of virtual currency result in capital gains or losses. Code § 1031 provides information on the tax consequences of like-kind exchanges. Currently, § 1031 only applies to real property (e.g., land and buildings). As a result, an exchange of cryptocurrencies (e.g., Bitcoin for Ethereum) will result in a capital gain or loss; § 1031 is not available.

Notice 2014-21 also discusses the tax implications of mining a cryptocurrency (see Q-8, Q-9, and Q-10). When a taxpayer successfully “mines” virtual currency, the fair market value of the virtual currency as of the date of receipt is includible in gross income. The question then becomes whether the mining of cryptocurrency is a “hobby” or a “trade or business.” The IRS references a news release from April 2007 (FS-2007-18) to help make this determination.

If a taxpayer's "mining" of virtual currency constitutes a trade or business and the "mining" activity is not undertaken by the taxpayer as an employee, the net earnings from self-employment (generally, gross income derived from carrying on a trade or business less allowable deductions) resulting from those activities constitute self-employment income and are subject to the self-employment tax. Consequently, the fair market value of virtual currency received for services performed as an independent contractor, measured in U.S. dollars as of the date of receipt, constitutes self-employment income and is subject to the self-employment tax.

Beginning in 2023, cryptocurrency exchanges will be required to report a summary of any customer's cryptocurrency transactions to the IRS. The IRS will be requiring this information to be reported on a Form 1099-DA ("DA" for "digital assets"). The form is expected to be similar to the form currently used by brokers to report transactions involving stocks, bonds, or other investment securities (Form 1099-B). In addition, the Treasury Department is in the process of developing regulations to guide cryptocurrency exchanges with this reporting.

53. (LO 2) A letter ruling is a written determination issued by the IRS Office of Chief Counsel in response to a taxpayer's written request, prior to the filing of a tax return (or other report required by law).

Rev.Proc. 2023-1 (2023-1 I.R.B. 1) provides significant detail regarding this process (the revenue procedure is more than 115 pages long). The IRS will not provide rulings on certain issues [see, for example, Rev.Proc. 2023-3 (2023-1 I.R.B. 144)], and any ruling applies only to that taxpayer. In addition, any ruling can be revoked by the IRS. Rev.Proc. 2023-1 (which is updated annually) provides a schedule of user fees, a sample format for a letter ruling request, and a checklist for the request. Generally, the user fee is not refundable and the user fee can range from $30,000 to $38,000. Of course, the practitioner's fee also must be factored into this decision. These costs mean that only those tax issues with significant tax costs are considered for a private letter ruling request.

54. (LO 2) The cost of the football tickets for Alejandra and Zach is considered to be an entertainment expense and is not deductible (see § 274). But the cost of the lunch is not considered entertainment because it was purchased separately. As a result, it is deductible as a meal expense (see Reg. § 1.274-12 and Notice 2018-76). The meal expense is subject to the 50% limitation (see § 274 and Reg. § 1.274-11).

- a. U.S. Supreme Court.
  - b. 1955.
  - c. This “landmark case” is where the Supreme Court defined the term income. Two cases with different facts but the same issue were consolidated by the Supreme Court in this opinion. The common question is whether money received as exemplary damages for fraud or as the punitive two-thirds portion of a treble-damage antitrust recovery must be reported by a taxpayer as gross income. The Supreme Court held that income is realized whenever there are “instances of undeniable accessions to wealth, clearly realized, and over which the taxpayers have compete dominion.” So here, both taxpayers had income. And because Congress had not provided an exclusion for these income items, both also were included in gross income.
58. (LO 1, 2)
- a. The court addressed whether an interest the taxpayer held in various jet aircraft constituted a trade or business under § 162 (with a net loss allowed in determining the taxpayer’s taxable income) or a hobby under § 183 (with deductions limited to any income generated by the activity). The taxpayer asked the Tax Court to shift the burden of proof to the IRS (from the taxpayer) and asked the Court to excuse the substantial underpayment penalty due to reliance on professional advisers.

- b. The Tax Court held that the activity did not rise to the level of profit motive to permit deductions (i.e., it was a hobby under § 183). The burden of proof was not shifted to the IRS (so it was the taxpayer's duty to provide evidence of profit motive), and the substantial underpayment penalty that was assessed as reliance on professionals was not supported by evidence.

The taxpayer argued that some of the vacation and sick pay was accrued while the taxpayer was on temporary disability, and so some of the pay should be excluded from income. The Tax Court held that since the leave payments were not paid as workers' compensation (i.e., for personal injuries or sickness), the payments were not excludible from income.

2. IRC § 7463(b) states that a decision entered into by any small case decision "shall not be reviewed in any other court and shall not be treated as precedent for any other case."

In the reviewed opinion Larry Mitchell 131 T.C. 215 (2008), the court held that an ex-spouse's share of military retirement payments is subject to tax. This same issue had been litigated previously by the taxpayer in Mitchell, T.C. Summ. 2004-160.

In the past, the Tax Court has used collateral estoppel in small tax case decisions to stop (estop) a party from litigating the same issue in a regular Tax Court case. As a result, this reviewed decision seems to contradict their stance. Judge Holmes stated that this Tax Court decision means “that they are without effect on future litigation at all.”

3. For the Oprah car giveaway, the 234 audience recipients who received keys to a car were taxed on the value of the car, which was in the $30,000 range. Because they were merely present in the audience, the fair market value was included in gross income under § 61.

As for the World Furniture Mall promotion, the discount or rebate could be tax-free because a rebate of all or a portion of the purchase price of property generally does not result in gross income. The customer would have a zero basis in the furniture. Rev.Rul. 76–96 and Rev.Rul. 88–95. See “Furniture for Nothing and It’s all Tax-Free,” Journal of Taxation, December 2006, pp. 382 and 383.

4. There does not appear to be a clear-cut answer to this question. Code § 104 allows exclusion from gross income for damages paid on account of physical injuries and physical sickness. However, the IRS requires observable bodily harm for an exclusion to be available (Ltr.Rul. 200041022).

So is false imprisonment physical? In CCA 200809001, the IRS allowed an exclusion for a settlement with an institution for sexual abuse. However, the Tax Court in Daniel and Brenda Stadnyk, T.C. Memo. 2008–289 would not allow an exclusion for $49,000 received for about one day in a jail.

Brenda Stadnyk was dissatisfied with an automobile purchase, so she placed a stop payment order on the check she tendered to the dealership. Bank One listed the reason for not paying the dealership as a “NSF check.” The dealership then filed a criminal complaint against her for passing a worthless check. She spent about one day in a holding area in a county jail.

In “Why False Imprisonment Recoveries Should Not Be Taxable,” Tax Notes, June 8, 2009, pp. 1217–1220, Robert Wood provides a lengthy discussion of this problem.

RESEARCH PROBLEMS 5 TO 7

These research problems require that students utilize online resources to research and answer the questions. As a result, solutions may vary among students and courses. You should determine the skill and experience levels of the students before assigning these problems, coaching where necessary. Encourage students to use reliable websites and blogs of the IRS and other government agencies, media outlets, businesses, tax professionals, academics, think tanks, and political outlets to research their answers.

5. (1) A Google search will likely produce a variety of links, including one to Cornell University Law School’s Legal Information Institute (law.cornell.edu/uscode/text/26/61). This section defines gross income broadly. In addition to the 14 items specifically listed as income, § 61 directs the reader to other IRC sections and indicates that the list of income items is not all-inclusive. In general, the IRC takes a broad view of income; everything is income unless an IRC section specifies that the amount is not income.

- (2) To find the case, go to the U.S. Tax Court website and on the “Orders & Opinions” drop down menu, click on Opinions Search. Enter the name Mark Spitz in the “Case Name Keyword” field and click on the Search button.
- a. The tax years are 2001 and 2002, as indicated in the first sentence of the case, not 2006, the year in the citation, which is the year the case was decided.
  - b. As noted above, 2006.
  - c. The court decided in favor of the IRS.
  - d. At the end of the decision, the penalty in § 6662 is discussed. This section imposes a 20% accuracy-related penalty on any portion of a tax liability underpayment (the situation in which Mr. Spitz found himself) attributable to a substantial understatement of income tax. Mr. Spitz was found not liable for the penalty because the court indicated that he was unsophisticated in tax law and had relied on a competent adviser to prepare his return.
6. a. From the “Orders & Opinions” drop down menu, click on Opinions Search. On the “Opinions Search” tab, review the “Opinion Type” choices.
- b./c. From the “Orders & Opinions” drop down menu, click on Opinions Search. On the “Opinions Search” tab, select the appropriate opinion type, and enter a common last name in the “Case Name Keyword” bar.
- d. From the “Rules & Guidance” drop down menu, click on Tax Court Rules.
- e. The student e-mail should summarize the items above. Look for proper grammar and e-mail etiquette in addition to the correct answer.

SOLUTION TO ETHICS & EQUITY FEATURE

Reporting Tax Fraud (p. 2-7). A survey given in 2014 by the IRS Oversight Board indicated that 86 percent of Americans believe that it is unacceptable to cheat on their taxes. On the other hand, that same survey indicated that 11 percent of taxpayers said that some cheating on their taxes was acceptable.

In October 2019, the IRS released its latest assessment of the tax gap (IR-2019-159). The IRS estimates that the gross average tax gap for the years 2011, 2012, and 2013 is about $441 billion per year. Voluntary payments or IRS administrative/enforcement efforts were $60 billion, resulting in a net tax gap of approximately $381 billion. These figures translate to around 83.6% of taxes being paid voluntarily and on time. See also irs.gov/pub/irs-pdf/p1415.pdf and irs.gov/pub/irs-pdf/p5365.pdf.

In May 2021, the Department of the Treasury estimated the 2019 gross tax gap to be around $630 billion, with more than $3.6 trillion of taxes owed but only about $3 trillion paid voluntarily. Enforcement activities and late penalties brought in $76 billion of additional revenues. The Treasury Department estimated the voluntary compliance rate (after enforcement activities) to be about 84.8% (roughly the same as in the 2019 IRS study). The Treasury report is at home.treasury.gov/system/files/136/The-American-Families-Plan-Tax-Compliance-Agenda.pdf. The Treasury Department attributes the tax gap to areas where there is limited information reporting (rental income and proprietorship income), sophisticated (and complex) pass-through entity structures, and offshore income. See also the Committee for a Responsible Federal Government blog on the tax gap (crfb.org/blogs/primer-understanding-tax-gap).

The Inflation Reduction Act of 2022 provides $80 billion in additional funding for the IRS over the next 10 years. Over $45 billion of this funding is appropriated for enforcement efforts to decrease the tax gap. According to the IRS, these funds will be used to examine large corporate and global high-net-worth taxpayers, pass-through entities, and multinational taxpayers who take aggressive tax positions.
